INTRODUCTION

I am Jarji, a full-stack web developer, currently based in Tbilisi, Georgia. I pay a lot of attention to getting the work done properly and on time. I am motivated to use my skills to do interesting and important work. I have created various React.js(Next.js) and Laravel projects and in conclusion, while doing these projects I find myself very determined and consistent.

EXPERIENCE

• Redberry International

During my time at Redberry International, I was exposed to various aspects of web development operations, working on projects that apply to real world applications. This experience provided me with opportunities into furthering my knowledge in frontend development and being introduced to backend development with PHP and Laravel and helped me develop a better understanding of how theoretical knowledge is applied in real-world scenarios. Throughout my internship, I had the privilege of working with experienced professionals who were dedicated to mentoring and guiding me.
